

THE STAR'S DAILY PICTORIAL PAGE

THE EVENING STAR, WASHINGTON, D. C., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 30, 1922.

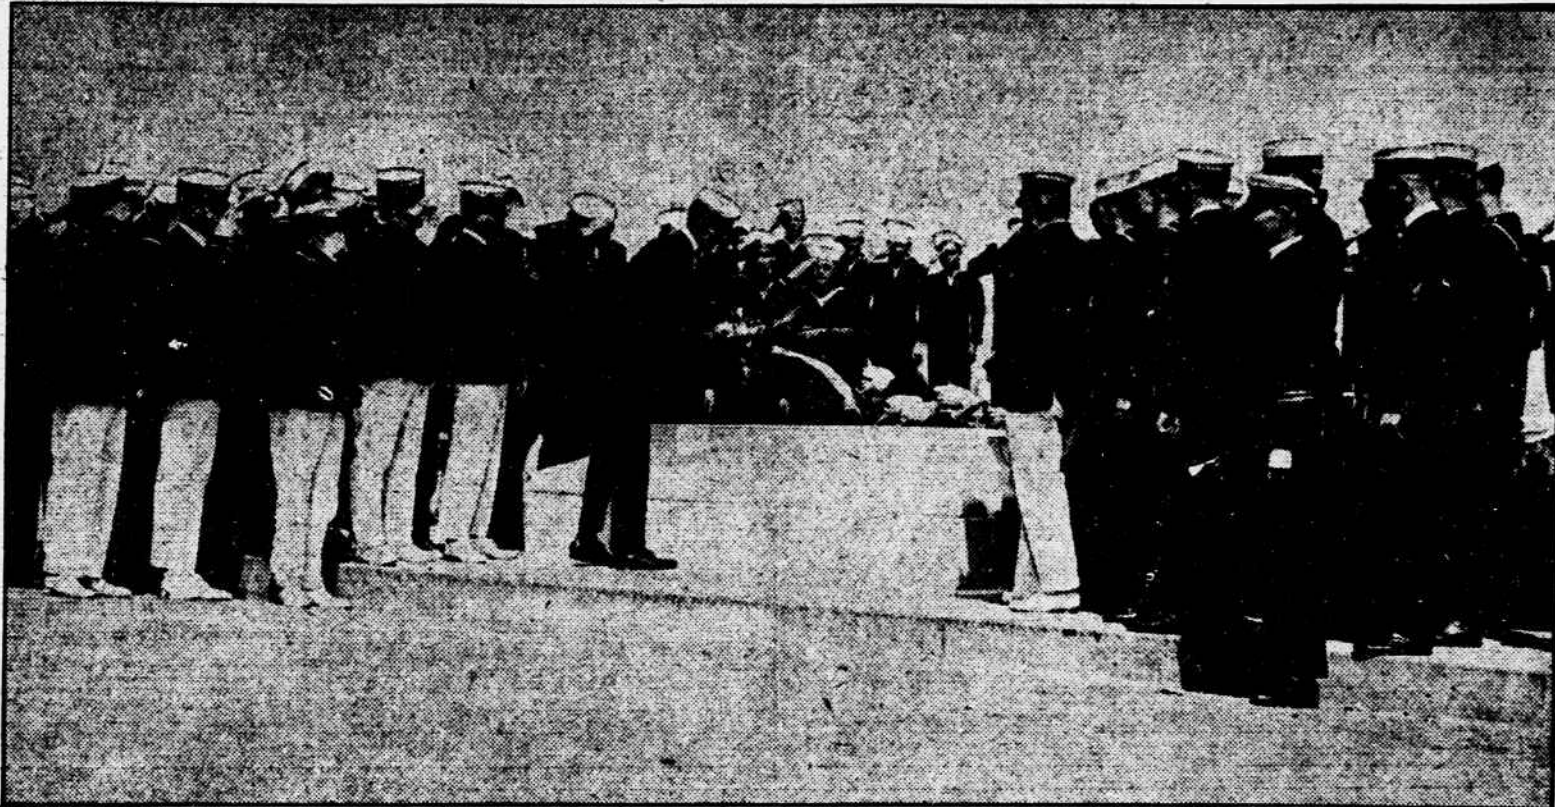

Group of Washington mothers and their babies photographed at the Plaza baby show yesterday. All of the youngsters were entered in the contest. National Photo.

Troop of Russian dancers rehearsing their picturesque folk dances in Potomac Park yesterday. The beautiful settings of the park afforded unusual photographic opportunities. National Photo.

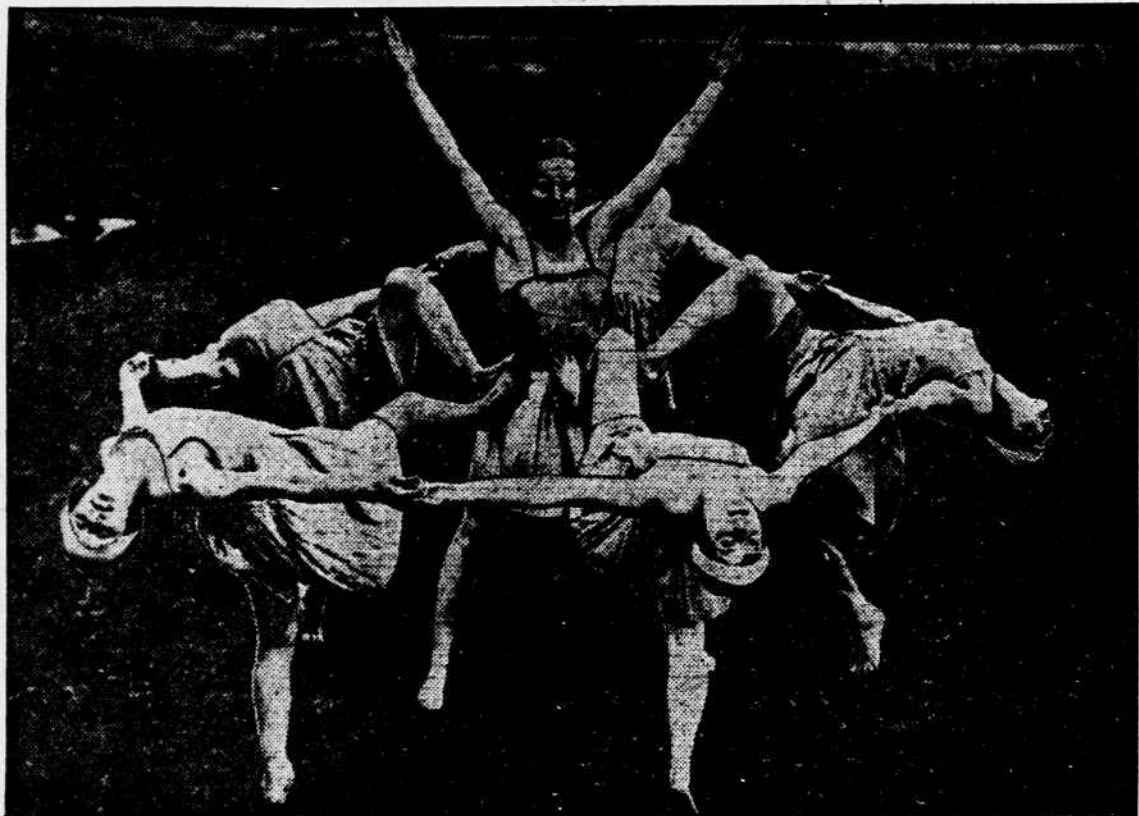

Catherine May Byram, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Byram of 110 C street northeast, winner of the Plaza beauty contest for babies under nine months old. National Photo.

Entire crew of the U. S. S. Nitro at Arlington yesterday, where they placed a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier. The Nitro is the largest ship ever coming to Washington. National Photo.

Tootsie Nolan, nineteen months old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Nolan of 328 F street northeast, winner of the Plaza beauty contest for babies under two years old. National Photo.

A classic Maypole, or the modern dance, as rhythmically expressed by Margaret Wales and her class of girls at her school of dancing, Harlech, North Wales. Copyright by Underwood & Underwood.

Mr. and Mrs. John Harriman, who were secretly married at Port Chester, N. Y., recently. Harriman is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Harriman of New York and the bride was Miss Alice A. Laidley of Chicago. The young couple, each nineteen years old, met at the home of Howard Chandler Christy, illustrator. Keystone View Co.

Yesterday was a great day for Washington youngsters at Glen Echo Park, when the Carmen held their annual outing. This photo shows the popular clown and his audience. National Photo.

First picture of Capt. Roald Amundsen's departure for the north pole. The photograph shows Assistant Secretary of Commerce Huston and party aboard the S. S. Maud, Amundsen's ship, at Nome, Alaska. Wide World Photo.

Miss Laurel Miller of New York, secretary of the Astrological Society, who is in Washington to make use of the Naval Observatory in proving her claim as the discoverer of two new planets, Esar and Tasma. National Photo.

An English title does not tempt Aubrey Briscoe, an American. He is a California fruit grower, recently falling heir to a baronetcy. He went to England to claim the title—but now he says he does not want it. Keystone View Co.

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Huston and party enjoying a sight-seeing trip by "pupmobile" in Alaska. The visitors are being pulled along the railway track by Leonhard Seppala's team of racing dogs, the winners of the all-Alaska sweepstakes. Wide World Photo.